The Institute of Education for Special Needs invites applications for a University Professorship (Salary Scale: W 3 NBesO) in Professional Orientation in Inclusive Education Contexts to be filled at the earliest possible date.

The future holder of this position will represent the department in teaching and research. He or she will perform teaching duties in the "Bachelor of Arts (B.A.) in Special Education" (polyvalent) degree programme and the "Master of Arts (M.A.) in Special Education" degree programme.
Candidates are expected to have a wide range of qualifications and experience in professional orientation in inclusive education contexts and experience in the acquisition of third-party funding. Interest in interdisciplinary cooperation and in cooperation with the fields of education, vocational education and subject didactics as well as an in international research networking is required.

Conditions of appointment are in accordance with § 25, Niedersachsen Higher Education Act (NHG).

Part-time employment can be arranged on request.

As an equal opportunities employer, Leibniz Universität Hannover has set itself the strategic aim of significantly increasing the proportion of women. Female scholars are therefore particularly encouraged to apply. Applications from abroad are especially welcome. Equally qualified candidates with disabilities will be given preference.

In its mission statement, Leibniz Universität Hannover attaches great importance to the international orientation of teaching and research. At the same time, it places major value on the intensive guidance and support of its students and on the university's close ties to the region and to Niedersachsen. Its professors are thus expected to take up residence in the Region of Hannover.

Successful candidates who have reached the age of fifty by the time of appointment and who do not already have civil servant status will be given an employment contract.
